*Relaxed and peaceful
Country House Hotel*

Discover for yourself the peace and warmth of the Waren House Hotel, situated majestically above the natural birdlife sanctuary of Budle Bay.

This attractive Georgian house, once owned by the third Lord Derwentwater, now offers today's visitor a rare retreat for true relaxation, along with a central point for venturing through the delights of North Northumberland and the Scottish Borders.

There are ten en-suite rooms and three suites all decorated in individual styles.

Breakfast and dinner are served in the romantic dining room where food is presented with the utmost care. Our cellar is stocked with a huge choice of reasonably priced fine wines.

From this tranquil setting it is easy to find the treasures of the Heritage Coast, including the magnificent castle at Bamburgh, just two miles away. The Farne Islands, scene of the daring exploits of Victorian heroine Grace Darling, are reachable by boat from nearby Seahouses and Holy Island is a short drive away as is Alnwick, with its famous castle and magnificent garden.

For those seeking the simple pleasures of walking - the sandy shore offers mile upon mile of beautiful scenery, whilst inland Northumberland National Park provides a more challenging but equally charming landscape.

North Northumberland offers an enviable mixture of tranquillity and cultural heritage that is hard to beat. Go on, treat yourself!
